WELSHING BOARD

Should the State of California
 keep its pledged word?

Why not?

Perhaps one should not be too censorious at a time when it seems the entire world is busily engaged with a pair of scissors cutting up treaties into paper dolls resembling Marx, but I am just old-fashioned enough to cling to the idea that the word of a nation and an individual should be adhered to, and when they realign give them the works.

With these passing observations
 I come to the subject of my lucubrations this morning, the failure of the California State Park Commission to complete its contract for the acquisition of Unit 4 of the Mt.
 Diablo State Park, which geographically speaking, is the top of the mountain.

The park was created by act of the legislature in 1921, and the board of supervisors, retaining its future as a recreational and scenic asset, contributed the sum of $50, 000 for the purpose of obtaining the acreage. This contribution was to have been matched by the State Park Commission from a $5,000,000 fund voted by the people of California for the purpose of creating a system of state parks.

This county has done its part and lived up to the letter and spirit of the agreement; but the park board, it is regrettable to be said, has welshed on its bargain and has only partially fulfilled its word by contributing only $10,000 of the $50,000 promised.

As a result the option for the acquisition of the property is now in jeopardy and unless the park board is forced by public sentiment to perform, the most valuable unit of the acreage, the top of the mountain will be lost.

A movement to place a museum on the mountain gained considerable headway a short time ago, but

Steamer Line To Resume Service

SAN FRANCISCO, March 19.—UP
 The Los Angeles Steamship Co., operators of the coastwise passenger and freight steamer Yale, today asked the railroad commission for permission to resume service between San Francisco and Los Angeles May 15.

The commission allowed service to be suspended last October, when the company pleaded higher operating costs made winter service unprofitable.

The Admiral Line also will resume passenger service between San Diego and Seattle and intermediate ports in the late spring.
 High Britain, passenger traffic manager of the line, said.

Constitution Is Praised By Dr.
 Paul S. Cadman

Politics and economics now are marching hand in hand and no matter what politicians might wish, they must realize that today these two factors are inseparable.

This was the statement made last evening by Dr. Paul Cadman, University of California professor at a mass meeting sponsored by the Richmond Teachers Association at the high school auditorium.

Cadman chose as his subject,
 "The Constitution and the New Deal." He declared that changing the constitution will probably be one of the major issues in the coming political campaign. The question at stake will be whether the constitution will be changed in the usual manner or whether a radical change will be made.

Cadman cautioned his listeners to remember that our constitution is one of the oldest in existence and it is unique inasmuch as it guarantees the liberty and freedom of the individual citizen.

He closed his address with a review of the changing conditions in the United States since this country has changed from an agricultural to an industrial nation.

The speaker was introduced by Helen Parker, president of the Association. The University Quartette entertained with five selections.

Astronomy Talk

George Bartholomew, Berkeley astronomer, was the speaker last evening when the Richmond 20-30 Club held its dinner meeting at Hotel Carquinez. Bartholomew gave an interesting, illustrated, lecture to the members of the service club on the science of astronomy.

M. Doldge was chairman of the evening and introduced the speaker.
 Reports were heard that the club basketball team won a victory over Berkeley on Wednesday night by a score of 36 to 27.

At the meeting next Thursday night the club will hear a talk on the work of the Richmond Traffic Safety Council. Ray Melin will be chairman of the day.

CHICKENS STOLEN

Miller Hits
 "Cowards" In Jail Attack

MARTINEZ, March 19.—UP—Further disclosures of asserted infidelity by county officials who purportedly permitted Joe Parente, one-time run runner, to leave jail almost at will, obtain bailouts at town barber shops, lay bets on races at pool rooms and go and come as he pleased were made tonight.

Meanwhile, federal officials who ordered Parente placed in the Contra Costa county jail at the time of his conviction disclaimed all responsibility for investigation as Sheriff John Miller hurled charges of "meddling."

COWARDS BLAMED
 "Some coward wrote the United States Marshal's office in San Francisco," Miller said, referring to a visit of a marshal's deputy at the jail recently. Miller asserted that the federal officer had opened the Parente investigation upon receipt of an anonymous letter hinting that the convict was "leading the life of

FRIEND OF SELZ WILL BE QUIZZED

Michael Baronovich, former Richmond Ford plant employee and believed to have been the victim of Jerome Von Braun Selz, laughing killer of Mrs.
 Ada Franch Rice, former El Cerrito woman, has been found alive and well.

Baronovich was discovered by Sheriff James J. McGrath of San Mateo county working at a sheet metal plant at Newman. McGrath announced that Baronovich will be questioned by his officers.

TO BE QUESTIONED

When informed of the discovery of Baronovich, Police Chief L. E.
 Jones of Richmond stated that he would ask Sheriff McGrath to question Baronovich and that he probably would send a local officer to Redwood City to interview the former Richmond man, who was a friend of Selz.

"Local police believe that Baro-vich may be able to throw some light on the activities of Selz in Richmond and may aid local police in connecting Selz with the murder of Joseph Anthony here on the night of January 7, 1935.

Bussey Plea Is Denied By State Court

SAN FRANCISCO, March 19.—
 UP—The State Supreme court today denied an application for a writ of habeas corpus filed by Le Roy Bussey, 27, Antioch, one of three men charged with the murder of Ellen S. Knight, 36 year old Contra Costa county pioneer.

Bussey previously had been denied a writ of habeas corpus by the Contra Costa Superior court and the District Court of Appeals.
 He asked his application on the grounds that no evidence was presented at a preliminary hearing to indicate that he was more than a witness at the attack which as-sertedly resulted in the death of the aged San Joaquin river "ark" resident.

The co-defendants, Falls Sutton and Louis Sly, both of Antioch, have indicated they will plead not guilty and not guilty by reason of insanity when they face trial at Superior court in Martinez.

The delegates at large, include J.
 C. Needham, Modesto; J. M. Ingram, Sacramento; George E. Cryer, Los Angeles and E. Weaver Campbell,

Dairymen Lose Fight Against Chain Store

MARTINEZ, March 19.—Questioning the legality of an act which does not and cannot prohibit the reduction of the price of a product but which attempts to prohibit advertising of such reduction of price, Superior Judge A. F. Bray today had denied the petition of two Contra Costa retail groups for a temporary injunction against Hag-strom's Food Stores.

He left until trial of the issues,
 a date for which has not been set,
 the question of a permanent injunction. He told attorneys for both sides that his action was also based on an opinion of Judge Gray of Alameda county that the act under which the injunction was sought and which was passed among "fair trades" bills of the 1935 legislature was unconstitutional.

The Contra Costa Retail Grocers'
 Association, the Contra Costa Milk
 Dealers' Association and William M. Luis, San Pablo dairymen, were the plaintiffs.

 tened to talks from men prominent in the industrial world.

The banquet was thoroughly enjoyed, and during this part of the program, an orchestra rendered sweet music, which was interspersed with vocal solos and dancing.

W. E. Zander, active worker in the association and member of the local commerce body, opened the meeting with an address of welcome, and distributed a large number of prizes after which he introduced P. M. Sanford, president of the Chamber of Commerce as the toastmaster of the evening.

Sanford opened the program by welcoming the members of the association, and said it was a pleasure to have had them as the guests of the city during the day. "In your visits to the industrial plants," said Sanford, you have seen some-

MORE MOONEY LETTERS ARE GIVEN COURT

SAN FRANCISCO, March 19.—(U.P.)—One hundred and fifty letters, written by Tom Mooney were introduced into evidence in the state hearing of the famed labor prisoner's application for a writ of habeas corpus today.

The bulky correspondence, identified by Edward Cunha, former assistant district attorney, was designed to show that Mooney was an advocate of violence in "radical" circles prior to the Preparedness Day bombing in 1916 for which he was convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment.

Cunha, in the nominal capacity of witness for the seventh day, asserted as the letters were read that he believed Mooney was a potential "assassin and murderer" before the bombing took place.

It was upon that premise, he declared, that he had assisted in the prosecution of Mooney during his trial in 1917. Cunha said it was his opinion that whether Mooney had personally set off the bomb or not, he still was guilty of murder as an accomplice.

During presentation of the correspondence, Cunha clashed frequently with John Finerty, attorney for Mooney. When the state releases Cunha—its second witness of the hearing—Finerty is expected to launch a bitter attack to upset his contention that Mooney was not "framed" as he alleges.

Most of the letters were written while Mooney was acting as co-editor of "The Blast," a newspaper published at the home of Alexander Burkman. Many of them were signed "yours in revolution," "yours in revolt" and "long live the workers."

Diablo Mountain Yields Deep Sea Plankton Fossils

BERKELEY, March 19.—Two large deposits of siliceous skeletons of the marine microscopic organism known as radiolaria have just been discovered by University of California scientists in the Middle Eocene strata north of Mount Diablo, Contra Costa county. It is announced by Professor Bruce L. Clark, curator of the invertebrate collection in the university's museum of paleontology. The discovery is the first, so far as is known, on the North American continent.

Radiolarians today are plankton forms found in the oceans and are most abundant in tropic seas. The only deposits comparable to those found by Professor Clark and his associates must be dredged up from depths ranging from 2,000 to 4,000 fathoms, or from 12,000 to 24,000 feet. The deposits in the two zones found at the mountain are several hundred feet thick and the two layers are separated from each other by 2,000 feet of sand shales. One other locality in the western hemisphere famous for deposits of this kind is on the Barbadoes Islands in the West Indies. Those latter deposits are in Miocene age strata. The best known localities otherwise are in the South Pacific.

Ernest Heinrich Haackel, the renowned German zoologist, photographed the radiolarian species dredged from great ocean depths by the British scientific expedition on the ship Challenger, sixty years ago. He described more than 4,000 species and stated that future workers would find many more.

The full significance of the Diablo discovery cannot be estimated at this time. According to Professor Clark, it may take a number of years to describe all of the species in the collection.

So important is the Diablo region as a zoologic and paleontologic field that there is a movement on foot to establish a museum on top of the mountain to keep the public informed on the practical applications of these studies to everyday life. Civic organizations in Walnut Creek, Martinez and other towns are behind the movement.

LAMSON CASE TO BE GIVEN TO JURY TODAY

SAN JOSE, March 19.—(U.P.)—David Lamson, his black hair streaked with grey and weary lines etched in his face, cautiously looked into the future tonight, and debated what he will do if his fourth trial on wife murder charges ends with his acquittal.

Three years of legal conflict have left him weary of advances, suspicious of what may happen to him. He retains confidence that ultimately he will be vindicated in his claim to innocence of the "Latin tub murder" of his wife, Althea Thorpe Lamson.

At the same time he is not strongly confident of acquittal in his current trial, expected to be before a jury of seven men and five women after six weeks' proceedings tomorrow.

"You never can tell what will happen," is Lamson's attitude. One arm tucked beneath his head, Lamson reclined on a jail cell cot, stroking a little grey kitten that "adopted" him some time ago.

"Well, Dave, what now, assuming you are acquitted this time?" he was asked.

"I really can't answer that question definitely," he answered. "My family comes first. My father has been ill at his ranch about 150 miles from Calaveras, Canada. I have him to think about, and whether I will go there or he comes down here has to be decided."

Lamson's mother died as a result of injuries sustained in an automobile accident during his second trial.

"I would like to go with my little girl," Lamson remarked.

Lie Campaign Is Charged By Federal Agent

SAN FRANCISCO, March 19.—UP.—A "whispering campaign of lies" is leading many Filipinos to refuse federal offers of free transportation to the Philippines for repatriation, Edward W. Cahill, San Francisco, commissioner of immigration, charged today.

"The Filipinos have been told they will be drafted into labor camps or the army if they return home," Cahill said. "They have been told they will not be allowed to take money out of the United States and that they must sign a promissory note to repay this country for the cost of their transportation."

He declared that none of these allegations were true. Less than 500 applications for return to the islands have been received to date in this district although there are 45,000 Filipinos in the state, Cahill revealed.

C. L. BIBBINS of Santa Cruz has been visiting his son Frelson, and family here for the past week. During that time a trip was made to Redding. The visitor will return home the last of this week.

Miller Hits "Cowards" In Jail Attack

Relly in Martinez.

The issue first was raised when it was reported that Parente was permitted to leave the jail and have access to the city. It was said he visited pool rooms, taverns and saloons, made purchases and had his hair cut at Martinez shops.

ACTED AS CHIEF

It further was reported that Parente acted as chief, along with Mrs. Ruth McCord, former Contra Costa social worker charged with presentation of a false claim against relief funds, at a dinner party sponsored by one of the inmates celebrating his 40th birthday.

Sheriff Miller, who returned today from Reno, Nev., told interrogators that "one of the jailers had been removed from his job." He indicated that he had been speaking to Hercules Logan, one of the jailers previous to issuing the statement.

NOT DISMISSED

When questioned, however, Logan said he had not been dismissed, but that Miller had told him that "there were going to be some changes around here."

Meanwhile federal authorities said that reports concerning Parente's asserted "run of the town" will be forwarded to the federal bureau of prisons at Washington. At the same time, no federal source could be found which contemplated immediate action in the case.

NO JURISDICTION

Wayne Listerman, chief of the department of justice agents in the San Francisco district, said his bureau had no jurisdiction over the handling of Parente. He said it was a matter for the prison bureau.

Charles Upton, probation officer and only local representative of the bureau, declared any investigation was not within his province.

U. S. Attorney H. H. McPike, on the recommendation of whose office it was said, Parente was placed in the county jail instead of a federal prison, said there was nothing he could do about the reports of Parente's freedom.

ACTION AWAITED

McPike indicated the sheriff of the county had complete charge of federal prisoners entrusted to his care and was under contract to care for them properly. Infraction of the contract was a matter for civil action.

The date tree is unusual in that the male and female flowers grow on separate trees. Growers commonly plant the male date trees for about one acre of female date trees and inasmuch as the male trees can bear no fruit, about 90 per cent of them are destroyed. The history of date growing is older than the history of civilization, and we find it outlined both as to culture and methods of serving in the clay tablets of ancient Assyria. It is almost the national industry of the Arabs. The Arabs have long since held the date in great esteem, as it is a very satisfying food due to the large amount of sugar it contains, and its concentrated food value is important to those who must cross dreary wastes of desert where any food that is carried along must not spoil readily.

Dates are one of the few foods which can be grown in the desert regions of the world where there are long sunny days with a high temperature and dry air. One date tree may provide as much as a hundred pounds of fruit per year. Even one bunch of dates sometimes weighs as much as thirty pounds.

The Persian gulf is an important date center, although the date crop from Coachella Valley in California is now becoming famous for an excellent type of date. About nine-tenths of the imported dates are brought in from Smyrna, Turkey and Arabia, where they are gathered in bunches by a whole line of boys swarming right up the tree trunks, clear from the ground to the fruit. One boy cuts the fruit and hands it down to the others. The dates are usually packed by women, then loaded on camels and carried across the desert.

The Deglet Noor is held to be one of the choicest of the many hundreds of known varieties. It is a beautifully colored, transparent amber. This type of dates grows in the hottest sections of the Sahara Desert. Pure dates are usually smaller and are of a dark brown color. Other dates vary in size and consistency. Some are hard like bread and taste like dried cake. Others are so soft and mushy that they can not be shipped to market. Dates are usually classified according to whether they are "dry" or "wet" but this classification does not always hold good since a "wet" date may be made dry by exposing it to dry air at a high temperature. It is said that Orientals sometimes classify them as to whether they are "hot" or "cold" according to whether they cause a burning sensation in the stomach if used as a main article of diet for some time. If the date makes the stomach "burn" they class it as a "hot" variety.

Dates vary greatly in composition. However, they are chiefly composed of sugar, water and cellulose. They contain between 60 per cent and 70 per cent of sugar. This large amount of sugar which makes them so high in food value.

A diet of dates is lacking in protein and the Arabs make up for this deficiency by using milk with the dates as the milk supplies the protein which is lacking. Certainly, a diet of dates and milk will sustain life for many months. This combination is an excellent one to use for the luncheon meal. Try using one pint of milk with ten or twelve dates for luncheon and I am sure you will enjoy the change. A delicious date salad may be made by placing cottage cheese on leaves of lettuce, and covering the cottage cheese with pitted, cleaned dates.

Dates may be given to children, as the date supplies them with a natural sweet.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

(Annoying Trouble)

Question: L. D. A. writes: "I have suffered for about six years with the annoying trouble known as hemorrhoids. As I do not know the first thing about the disease, I thought I would ask you for information."

Answer: The information you request regarding hemorrhoids is entirely too long to be given in this short space. I advise that you write again, sending your full name and address in order that two articles on hemorrhoids may be forwarded to you. These articles are ready for anyone who desires them. I request that, with your inquiry, you send ten cents to help pay the cost of preparation and mailing. Also, please enclose one large self-addressed envelope. Certainly, a hemorrhoid is an annoying trouble and the discomfort and inconvenience caused the patient are all out of proportion to the size of the swollen and painful vein. Sometimes, several of these enlarged veins form simultaneously, and in addition to the local discomfort, the patient may develop marked symptoms of nervousness. However, treatment is usually entirely satisfactory and in most cases, the patient can be entirely relieved.

(Pain in Stomach)

Question: Mac. L. wants to know: "Why is it that I have a pain in my stomach at only one time of day—when I first get up in the morning? It lasts only a few moments and then I am completely free of it."

Answer: The most probable cause is an accumulation of gas in the top of the stomach, which has formed during the night. However, it is unwise for me to attempt to diagnose your case by mail and if the pain continues, the best plan is for you to be examined.

Guide to Charm

Dr. Chrisman Discusses Two Main Divisions of Spasmodic Seizures in Adults

By CLAUD NORTH CHRISMAN, M.D.

A GENERAL convulsion from any cause is one that involves the major portion of all the voluntary muscles and is a series of quite involuntary paroxysms or contractions. It may be of varying degrees of violence and of several types of demonstration. We have two main divisions of such spasmodic seizure and they are called tonic and clonic. In a genuine tonic convulsion the invading trouble gets a strong grip and holds on. The body and limbs of the patient go stiff. They stay that way, during the seizure, which may vary from a brief period to several days as in a severe case of tetanus or lockjaw.

In clonic convulsion, the demonstration is more hysterical—the muscles contract and relax. These attacks vary from mere nervous twitching and jerking to really violent agitations. During any type of seizure, the patient may be wholly conscious, wholly unconscious, or almost anywhere in between, which indicates to what extent the brain is involved.

Tonic Seizures

In lockjaw, for instance, the seizure is a tonic one, as has been mentioned, but the sufferer remains entirely conscious. The involvement is of spinal origin and the convulsions are pronounced. The convulsions of tetanus or lockjaw begin usually in the jaws. Hence the common name.

A similar development is found in cases of poisoning, as in strychnine poisoning with one particular exception. In taking poison, especially for suicidal purposes, the dose is likely to be exaggerated and the convulsions extreme, but the jaws will be the last factor to be involved. In both cases the muscles remain rigid between seizures, and this distinction is worth noting.

The convulsion of epilepsy is one of the mixed types, beginning with rigidity and proceeding into movements always exaggerated and sometimes of a very fantastic character. So many additional demonstrations attend the convulsion of epilepsy, such as mental terror or abdominal distress preceding the attack, that the trouble is readily diagnosed. Beyond keeping the patient from hurting himself, there is little to be done at the moment of this affliction, which calls for a very general treatment.

Convulsions that sometimes attack the person suffering from uremia are of somewhat the same nature—epileptoid; the modern diagnostician calls them "The trouble is recognized by urinalysis and the treatment varied accordingly. The uremic convulsion is usually passed rather promptly, leaving the patient cold and pale. He should be put to bed and kept warm with cloths or an electric pad over the region of the bladder.

Cause of Spasms

Spasms occur sometimes with severe hemorrhage, indicating a depletion of the brain fluid. Or, once in a long time, we see a spasm with sunstroke or apoplexy. We shall consider spasm in children at another time, but here it can be said that when children have spasms, look for some intestinal disturbance like undigested food, worms, or other parasites. The tickety child may have a congenital nervous system that is already unstable and any additional strain will upset it.

I am hesitant to approach the matter of hysterical seizures in adolescents, boys or girls. They seem often so unnecessary or one might say, "put on." But the background of the condition is genuine. The youngster of that age is emotionally verdant and control is more difficult to maintain. Indeed, the paroxysms are more hysterical than convulsive as a rule and must be handled with the utmost patience and understanding.

Modes and Manners

QUESTION: "When a bread-and-butter plate is provided, but no butter knife, where should the meat knife used for buttering bread be placed?" —D. P.

ANSWER: A bread-and-butter plate should always be provided with a butter knife. Rather than alternate between dinner plate and bread-and-butter plate as a resting place for the meat knife, when it is the only one provided, place it across the dinner plate after each using. This is neater and more convenient.

QUESTION: "Please tell me whether it is correct for a hostess who spends most of her leisure time at his club to use the club address on his personal cards?" —S. C.

ANSWER: He may use either his home or club address. Or he may use both if he likes, giving the home address in one corner and the club address in the opposite corner.

Hair Hints To Help You For Easter

By JACQUELINE HUNT

YOUR coiffure, under your Easter bonnet, must look carefree and extremely feminine. There should be plenty of curls, but they should be of the soft variety that you brush over your finger and push into place. Of course, hair must be bright and silky for these casual curls.

If it isn't soft, manageable and femininely alluring, you still have time to improve its appearance before you join the Easter parade. It takes only fifteen minutes a day for a thorough home treatment for the hair.

You can tell if your hair is dry and brittle or over oily. Perhaps it is none of these, but looks dull and lusterless without life or color. In any case brushing and scalp massage will help correct the condition. In addition you should use a tonic made specifically to correct the dryness or oiliness and, if needed, a pomade or oil.

Brush your hair thoroughly before you use tonic or any other preparation. Be sure the bristles of your brush are firm enough to penetrate to your scalp and loosen bits of lint, dust and dead skin cells that have accumulated. The brushing also arouses the circulation and makes the scalp more receptive to treatment.

Here is how you should apply your tonic to avoid spoiling your fingerwave: Pour about a tablespoon of tonic into a small dish. Take a small piece of cotton, dip into the tonic and squeeze out the excess. Now part your hair with a forefinger and down this part rub the tonic soaked cotton. With a soft towel, wipe away any moisture that remains on the hair. Go over the entire head in this way, parting the hair at one-inch intervals.

Do not comb or brush the hair while a hint of dampness remains. If you apply the tonic just before bedtime, you can pinch the waves into place with your fingers and leave the brushing until morning.

The easiest, and incidentally the best, way to brush your hair is to bend forward from the waist and brush the back hair over the head. Brush vigorously, then straighten up and, taking the hair a strand at a time, brush it back and up to loosen the scalp and polish the hair.

Your brush should sweep your scalp as well as the entire length of the hair, so that both are left clean. Wipe your brush on a clean towel after brushing each strand of hair.

All types of hair should be brushed. Girls often tell me that brushing makes their oily hair oilier. This may seem so at first because the brush picks the excess oil accumulated at the roots of the hair and distributes it down the length of the strands. But brushing gradually normalizes the action of the oil glands and corrects the condition.

If your hair is dry and lusterless have at least one good hot oil treatment between now and Easter.

Beauty Tips

QUESTION: "I have a lot of freckles under my eyes and across my nose. Can you tell me how to get rid of them?" —M. L. L.

Protection is the only thing that will prevent freckles if you tend to have them. Use a tinted foundation cream, sunproof cream or lotion before you apply your make-up. Wear hats with rims every time you are out of doors. Pure lemon juice or a lemon cream will prompt freckles to fade away a little faster.

QUESTION: "I have blonde hair that is really gold in tone, blue-gray eyes and a very fair skin. I can use the very light orange-red shades of rouge and lipstick well, but I do not have such good luck in finding the right shade of face powder for my skin." —Dot.

Avoid face powders of a pinkish tone. A light shade of beige or brunette or a cream shade of powder should give your skin the natural, velvety appearance you want. Get little sample boxes of powder in several shades so you can compare them.

QUESTION: "I would like to change my coiffure. I have a wide face, large eyes and a medium-sized mouth. I wear my hair straight. Do you think I could wear a center part?" —Gloria.

It is your nose that determines whether or not you can wear a center part. If it is long or too prominent, avoid a clearly marked line in the center of your head, as it emphasizes this feature.

Dishes for Today

Vegetables Add Delightful Flavors to Morning Menu

By JUDITH WILSON

ONE of the most delightful ways of introducing variety into your spring breakfast is with vegetables. Appetites demand something substantial, yet most of us get tired of the same cereal-beacon-egg-and-toast breakfast week after week.

Vegetables add flavor contrast, color and crispness. Try serving a dish of well chilled sliced tomatoes or iced cucumber slices along with your platters of ham and eggs, golden-coated codfish balls, grilled kidneys or cream left-over meat or dried beef.

Today's breakfast menus are quick and easy to prepare. The muffins and coffee ring might come from your local baker and be heated just before serving. The tomatoes can be stuffed the night before, the table set and the grapefruit prepared.

Ham and Eggs 1/4 inch thick. Cut into rounds, pour a little boiling water over it and allow to stand for 5 minutes. Drain thoroughly and saute in butter until golden brown on each side. Arrange the rounds on a hot platter. Poach the eggs, being careful to slip them into the water gently so they will hold their shape. Drain from the water, and arrange an egg on each ham slice. Dress with melted butter and dust with salt, pepper and paprika. Garnish the platter with salted tomato wedges.

Asparagus Scramble Cut cooked asparagus in small pieces and mix with eggs that have been beaten slightly with 1 tablespoon cream for each 2 eggs, salt and pepper to season. Turn into a pan in which 2 tablespoons butter have been melted. Cook, stirring constantly, until the eggs are creamy and 1 1/2. Serve on biscuits that have been split, toasted and buttered liberally.

the pulp with 6 tablespoons of chopped cooked bacon, 1 tablespoon melted butter, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1/2 cup soft bread crumbs and a small onion, finely minced. Season with salt and pepper and stuff into the tomatoes. Place in buttered muffin tins with a teaspoon water in each. Sprinkle with coarse bread crumbs and bake in a moderate oven 20-25 minutes. Left-over potatoes fried in butter make a tempting accompaniment.

Baked Eggs with Peas Drop eggs into buttered muffin tins, add a tablespoon cream or milk to each one, sprinkle with cracker crumbs, salt and pepper and dot with butter. Bake in a moderate oven until the eggs are puffed and set and golden brown on top. Remove to serving plates and cover with a rich cream sauce to which left-over peas or sauteed mushrooms have been added.

Sausage with Apples Fry your sausages until nicely browned and well-cooked. Drain from the fat and keep in a hot place. Pour some of the fat into another pan for frying the apples that have been washed, cored and cut into 1/2-inch rings. Sprinkle the apples with brown sugar and turn often until they are tender and brown. Use to garnish the platter of sausages. Biscuits and sausage gravy go well with this combination.

Spring Hats Are Akin to Man's Derby

By IRENE VAIL

New York—So many stylists and others returned from Paris wearing Schiaparelli's mannish derby plus its feminine veil that it was necessary to make immediate note of the fact. It seems that at least a dozen of the tailored costumes at the Schiaparelli openings were accompanied by derby hats, in straw or in felt, keeping closely to the original man's "bowler."

In fact, ever since the introduction of Rose Valois' "Homburg," Paris has had a reawakening of interest in masculine hat styles, and they have been logically developed to go with Directoire-inspired clothes. Talbot's postillion are one example. With the Marc Rochas sports clothes, the mannequins wore Marie Guy sports hats that approached mannish fedoras carelessly cuffed and feminized by the choice of gay colors, usually contrasting, for felt body and grosgrain crown ribbon.

Valois herself has developed the masculine theme in Gibson Girl sailors and top hats. Another house to endorse sailors of this type was Molynieux, not doing them in sennit, however, and little canotiers on the same order are shown in several collections as that of Chanel. Suzy shows chiffon sailors!

More and more close grow the relations between millinery and handbags. This season is providing the most feminine of fashions in bags that strongly reflect their millinery inspirations. We refer specifically to the models of straw braids made by a number of exclusive milliners. The most hat-like bag so far produced is a large plateau of sewn braid, which folded together and resembles a hat basket filled with flowers. Sometimes carried by flower girls at weddings, Gussies and linens of glazed chintz or linen, bouquets of flowers or clusters of fruit form a trimming belt top handles.

MODERN WOMEN

Mrs. Martin Takes the Men to Task for Lack of Leniency With Women

By MARIAN MAYS MARTIN

MUST women be better at their jobs than men in order to earn the same money? Readers of this column will remember a contest conducted by the magazine Independent Woman, which offered a cash prize for the purpose of finding the correct answer. The prize was offered the contestant submitting "the most vital and convincing true experience story—a story indicating that business and professional women must do work superior to that of their male associates in order to win similar recognition and monetary rewards."

The award was made to Diann Reid who cited the personal experience of her sister, a businesswoman, which proved not only that a woman must equal but excel men. Here is part of the informative narrative:

You and Your Child

By JANE HERBERT GOWARD

ON SEVERAL occasions recently Norman, on being sent to the store, short-changed his mother. The first time it was a penny and twice it was two cents.

Each time mother accepted the change, noting the shortage, but preferring to ignore it.

"How can one so young understand what he is doing?" she thought. Perhaps she remembered herself tempted once long ago. The acquisitional tendency is in all of us.

So the other day when a quarter disappeared from her pocketbook, mother had no difficulty tracing the theft. Norman had to stand on a chair to reach the bag. He left it in front of the closet after getting what he wanted.

Fear clutched at mother. Her Norman had stolen a quarter, a sizeable sum of money for a six-year-old to be sporting around! If it had been a penny or two, her concern probably would not have been so great. But a quarter! Her imagination ran wild; she saw him grown-up, hobnobbing with criminals and behind prison walls.

Later, as she tucked Norman in for the night, she asked him quietly, "Did you take a quarter from my pocketbook today?" "Yes, mother. I took it." He spoke with sleepy innocence, and mother found his truthfulness totally disarming. "You mustn't take money from my pocketbook again, Norman. If you want anything, you must ask for it." The conference ended with a forgiving good-night kiss. I doubt whether it made any impression on Norman.

To say that a young child steals is a harsh pronouncement. For as Norman's mother thought when he short-changed her, he did not understand what he was doing. But this is all the more reason for teaching him it is wrong to take another's property. He needs to be punished for the offense. Otherwise you tempt him to repeat it.

A child naturally seeks pleasure and avoids pain. It was natural for Norman to go to mother's bag for a quarter after getting away with those pennies. We are instinctively acquisitive and someone has to teach us where to draw the line or we cannot be expected to know better.

SILVER FOX

Direction in design is an important feature of new silver fox for spring. Vertical lines fall graduated drape over the arms. The back is manipulated in panel design.

Grade Difference

"However, within the last year, came the ruling for Civil Service examinations for all city and municipal jobs. My sister took the examination. Her grade, 98.4; his, 78.5. Not counting her experience and unblemished record of never having lost a case, a 'her own'."

In summing up, Miss Reid said: "Well, my sister got the job, salary and title, not because she was a woman and could do the work—but in spite of it."

Independent Woman received many communications along similar lines, expressing more than enough to prove the point, and it is so hoped, to encourage women to have the strength of their conviction that they can and do as good work as men.

"Why can't men see that denying women equal pay for equal work involves a risk they dare not take—the risk of developing superwomen as competitors?" Independent Woman asks editorially.

Probably one excuse women have for accepting less remuneration for the same work than men is that they suffer from an inferiority complex plus the knowledge that there are always more women than men, no matter what the circumstances. They have not only the competition of men to fear, but of each other. Women are notoriously afraid of one another. This fear is as much a factor in job as in husband hunting. It is by no means sex attraction that makes women prefer to work for and with men than with their own sex. Unfortunately though some women may consider their preference, it can hardly be denied.

I have a suspicion that if domestic help were supervised by the master instead of the mistress the so-called servant problem would be much easier of solution. In almost all households the tastes and prejudices of the master matter more to a maid than any idiosyncrasy of the mistress.

He-Boss Lenient

Curious though it may seem, the boss—the he-boss—is far more lenient with men who work under him than he is with the women. Take the matter of temperance. In some offices there are workers who are absent often for no sounder reason than the cold gray dawn of the morning after provides. When able to make the grade at all they arrive totally unfit for the performance of their duty and cheerfully alibi themselves by admitting their condition.

This sort of thing is not unusual in offices. But I should like to see the women take any such privilege. In order to get a day off they must have something equivalent to a doctor's certificate. The girl who is absent, no matter how necessary her absence may be, is regarded as an undesirable and is dismissed at the first opportunity. Ten minutes' absence from her post is counted against a girl, while the same office manager who takes that "land wick" at the frequent absences of men for a much longer period.

It is not only in the matter of salary but in the matter of tolerance that men get the best of the business bargain.

Mrs. Martin will be glad to answer in this column questions of general interest. Mrs. Martin cannot reply individually to every correspondent. Names will not be published. Address her care of this paper.

PURCHASING AGENTS ARE CITY GUESTS

Industries we have here. Short talks were also made by E. B. Bull, president of the Industrial Association, Fred D. Parr of the Parr Terminal company, C. A. Bullwinkle of the Ford Motor company, and Warren McBryde, former supervisor of this district and now connected with the San Francisco Industrial Association. All of the talks were brief, and were words of greeting to the assembled visitors. McBryde dealt with the early history of the city, and told of the marvelous work that had been accomplished by the locating of industries here.

Remarks were also made by Martin Gerry, president of the association, and Wayne B. Allen, past president.

The stunt of the evening was the introduction of Thomas Gregory Smith, of Liverpool, as commissioner of international purchases for Great Britain, and also ex-president of the Liverpool Chamber of Commerce, who afterwards turned out to be Daniel Patrick Casey of San Francisco, and a representative of Mayor Angelo Rossi.

Everyone in the audience with the exception of a few was in ignorance of the joke that was being perpetrated, and the alleged English visitor rambled along with a cockney accent, decrying everything American, telling the agents the place to purchase goods was in Canada, poked fun at the Irish, and told how superior the English were in every way.

Finally those in the know, jumped to their feet, and demanded that this sort of talk stop, and that the speaker be thrown out. There was a hushed silence, the speaker apologized, and sat down stating that he intended no offense and wished to apologize.

Then came the real introduction, and the crowd was convulsed in laughter. Casey continued his talk in a very entertaining manner.

Disease Outbreak Is Reported In Sunbury; Washington Is Saved

DISEASE OUTBREAK
SUNBURY, Pa., Friday, March 19.—An outbreak of scarlet fever and measles in this flood-ravaged valley city was reported by health authorities today.

Authorities announced 150 persons were under quarantine. They feared the outbreak of minor communicable diseases was the forerunner of an epidemic that might later include more serious diseases.

WATER RISING

MARIETTA, Ohio, Friday, March 19.—The Ohio river continued to rise here today, passing 45 feet. Seventy-five percent of the business section was under water. It was estimated the crest here would be 48 feet later this morning.

RELIEF WORK STARTS

PITTSBURGH, March 19.—UP—Relief work in Pittsburgh, flooded by three great rivers, with damage of $25,000,000, started tonight. Limited electric power was brought in from the west. It was destined first for hospitals, water pumping stations, street lights and police and fire systems. An adequate water supply was available.

case, he thinks that perhaps Baronovich might be able to impart valuable information to the local police concerning Selz's activities.

Selz and Baronovich were friendly while both worked at the local Ford plant and they lived nearby in San Francisco.

PRINTS ARE RECEIVED
At the same time Police Chief Jones revealed that although the State Bureau of Criminal Investigation has reported that fingerprints found in the Anthony apartments here the day the murder was discovered were not those of Selz, local police are continuing their investigation of the case, satisfied that Selz knows something about the murder.

Police Inspector George Bengley stated yesterday that the fingerprints found in the Anthony apartment may not have been those of the actual killer, and that they may have been made by some visitor to the apartment, weeks, or even months, before the slaying.

Bengley pointed out that the handle of the adze used to crush Anthony's skull had been carefully wiped clean of all incriminating fingerprints by the killer. Other articles, which might have been handled by the slayer, had also been wiped clean.

THEORY EXPLODED
The discovery of Rubonovich came at a time when special investigators for the San Mateo sheriff's office and the National Automobile Theft Bureau were investigating a theory that Selz had killed Rubonovich and had stolen his automobile, and later secreted the machine at a private garage.

Rubonovich's reappearance further complicates the investigation of Selz's confession that he killed a man he knew only as Michael Baronovich, a former Rumanian army officer, and threw his body into the bay near the San Mateo bridge. No trace of the body has been found as yet and officers now are doubtful as to whether there ever was such a person as Selz claimed he killed.

Yesterday a San Mateo county coroner's jury named Selz, who is serving a life sentence in San Quentin, as the killer of Mrs. Rice.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—UP—The raging Potomac reached a flood crest of 181 feet at 6 P. M. today and the United States Weather Bureau announced that all danger to the national capital apparently had passed.

Experts said the swollen stream would not rise more than another 10th of a foot before receding.

As the peak of the worst Potomac river flood was reached, the waters still were more than half a mile away from the White House.

Slayer's Wife Is Ordered Held For Court Trial

FOLSOM, March 19.—UP—Justice of the Peace J. F. Leonard today ordered Mrs. Ann Hall, 23, wife of George Hall, condemned murderer, held for trial in superior court on charges of conspiracy to aid Folsom prisoner, conspirator and a prisoner to escape.

Mrs. Hall attempted to pass the blame to her husband when she visited him at Folsom March 8, District Court Smith, saw Hall break away from guards and rush back to his wife. thing that will bring an end to the nefarious practice. What better place to begin than at the head of the state government? If we can force the party head to realize that a promise means something, perhaps we can put the finger on other public bodies and officials so they will know when they give a promise we intend to see that they keep it.

Sheep Rancher Held In Attempt To Murder Mate

BOONEVILLE, March 19.—UP—James Hutsell, 35 year old sheep rancher, was held in Mendocino county jail tonight charged with assault with intent to commit murder after he allegedly fired a rifle shot at his wife, Pearl.

According to reports reaching here, Hutsell attempted to commit suicide by drinking a bottle of iodine when Sheriff E. L. Williams appeared to make the arrest.

Williams reported that Hutsell, who recently was separated from his wife, rode to his ranch where his wife was supervising sheep-shearing. He drew a gun. It was said, and fired one bullet at his wife, missing her.

A ranch hand, William McGarity, reportedly overpowered Hutsell and took the gun away from him. Other helpers summoned aid from the sheriff's office.

Williams found Hutsell at the ranch house with his mother, he said, and as he neared the house Hutsell procured the bottle of iodine and drank it. He was rushed to Booneville for emergency medical treatment and was reported out of danger.

FLANDIN IS GIVEN OKAY BY CABINET

26 and May 3, will convene.

PRESS IS GLOOMY
Parliament's adjournment will give the government 10 weeks in which to pursue negotiations in the international field without the hovering threat of chamber debate.

The French press is gloomy, pointing out that Flandin brought back from London only one concrete result—the League Council's indictment of Germany for treaty violation—and a row of blasted hopes.

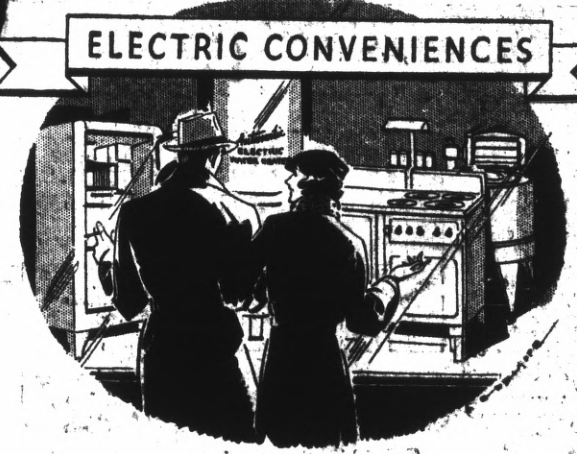

It points out that whatever happens in the next few weeks Europe's faith in security and tranquility has been shaken to its foundation. Many believe a new era will begin in London, an era of might and military preparedness instead of a network of mutual assistance pacts, non-aggression treaties and peace covenants.
